Howard D. Kenyon

To Mr. Kenyon . . .

We, the class of nineteen hundred and forty-seven, dedicate this book in appreciation for all that he did for us while a member of the faculty, having returned from retirement to teach in our high school during the World War II emergency. His sincerity, gentlemanly manner, and sense of humor made our work easier, and won for him a place with us as a friend whom we shall never forget.

Mr. John B. Chaffee

We, the class of nineteen hundred and forty-seven, take this opportunity to express a few words of welcome, on behalf of the student body, to our new superintendent, Mr. John B. Chaffee. Although he has been with us for only a year, we have come to know Mr. Chaffee as a true friend and to appreciate his sincere interest in our activities.

Principal's Message

The time of your graduation is at hand. This signifies the end of a period of study during which you have acquired certain knowledge. You have now reached a time when you will be given an opportunity to put that which you have acquired into practice. Many of you will continue your studying, others will seek opportunities in industry. In either case your high school training will serve you in good stead. If you follow the avenue to advanced learning, the school subjects you have just completed will be the foundation on which your future study will be built. If, however, you choose to seek employment immediately after graduation, your training should assist you in becoming a useful and appreciative citizen.

Do not let your graduation conclude your interest in your school. If we can be of service to you, please accept our help. Our congratulations to you at this Commencement time and may your experience here help you to have many successful years of happy living.

SCRIPT

"The Best Years of Our Lives"

"The Best Years of Our Lives", written and produced by the class of '47, under the direction of Miss Dorris Newton, is a lavish production based on the school life of this smashingly successful group.

The all-star cast, including two Academy Award winners of the past year, is of top-notch quality. The combination of this parade of talent makes it possible to bring to you the most talked-about picture of the century.

REEL 1

TIME: September 1935
PLACE: School Street School
CAST: Class of '47

It was at the magnificent age of six that we finally left our mothers' apron strings and ventured into the realm of school-teacher authority which we soon found a severe restraint on our rather rough and teeming imaginations. The main attraction in this first year was our milk and cookies at recess. Other features were the discoveries that crayons and pencils were to be used on paper instead of walls and that we couldn't voice our opinions whenever we pleased My how times have changed!

REEL 2

The joy of entering Pleasant Street School was soon dampened by the separation of the boys and girls on the playground. Oh, what a fate for our budding Casanovas! Dollhouses and fist-fights became the favorite pastimes of our up-and-coming group. In the fourth grade, to encourage our parents' hope of each of us becoming a child prodigy, we put on an exhibition, showing off our wonderful art work — No Dad, I didn't drop my paints; that's a sunset! Our stay in this school was ended sooner than we expected, thanks to the measles; but this didn't dash any of our hopes for the future.

Scene 1

September 1940 found us on top of the world — we were at last in the high school building, even though it was only as sixth graders, and the older classes didn't care a fig for us. We should care! Full of enthusiasm, we tackled our first project, the construction of an accurate electrical map of Europe. We were beginning to see the light!

Scene 2

Junior high school saw us as a happy group, full of hope for the next six years — we surely did need it. During these two years we experienced many new things — election of class officers, a different class in a different room every period, and parties galore. While we were in the eighth grade, elected members of the school took over the town offices. We were well represented by Nikki Erkelens who was Water Commissioner for a day.

REEL 4

Scene 1

TIME: 1943
CAST: Us as Freshmen

Then our dreams came true — we were at last classed as high schoolers! Our only disappointment was that the upper-classmen were not so happy as we over the intrusion into their midst. Now we had five class officers and at last we were able to go to the dances in the gym. Big time operators — at least we thought so! Long after school hours, on most any night, our group could be found on the playground behind the school equipped with flashlights and star charts, pencils and papers. Those flashlights revealed more than stars, didn't they, Chuck? When spring came our pastime was picnics — to increase our knowledge of the wonders of Nature.

Scene 2

TIME: 1944
CAST: Us as Sophomores

Carefully following the seniors' advice to take more subjects the first two years and loaf (well, prac.) the last two, our year as sophomores turned out to be one of hard studying for most of us. Our biggest thrill was the sponsoring of our first social event, the Sophomore Hop. After much cutting, pasting and holding of breaths, we held our dance the first week in March. It was a clownish affair (the theme, you know), and was a huge success.

Our hours spent in school were broken up by Sad Sack's famous caricatures of comic-book characters — the only trouble being that some of them faintly resembled members of our class.

Scene 3

TIME: 1945
CAST: Us as Juniors

Then came the junior year with many things in store for us. We first tackled the job of choosing our class rings; and, after many pro's and con's, came to the conclusion to buy a military style.

In April, Miss Chase took her life into her hands when she arranged for us to go to Boston to see "Henry V". What a day! No matter where one looked, a Sharon face would be there to grin back — and in the oddest places!

The outstanding event of the year was, of course, our Junior Prom. The gym, which was transformed with cut-outs of swans, pond lilies, and cat-o-nine-tails, was well filled with dancing couples. Naturally, everybody had a good time.

June came and with it preparations for giving the class of '46 their graduation and reception. We worked hard knowing that our turn was next.

Scene 4

TIME: 1947
CAST: Us as Seniors

Then it arrived — our last year in S.H.S. At last we were holding the title of high, exalted seniors. To start the year off, we held a Jeans Jamboree in October. Much comment was made on the amount of noise issuing from the gym, especially after Musical Chairs. Someone remarked that the seniors seemed to be making most of the racket — Yes, that could be very true.

We soon found out, though, that all play and no work just doesn't rhyme with the title of "senior"; for, in November, we started rehearsing for our smash hit, "A Date With Judy". The most famous line? "LEARN YOUR LINES!" à la Miss Chase. After much rushing around, we presented the results of our labor on December 13 — Yes, it was Friday; but it held no bad luck for us.

As soon as we were able to see straight again, we began our yearbook — no rest for the weary. Every afternoon was spent on hard work(?) accompanied by such remarks as — "No, that's no good" — "I need a cigarette" — "Does that sound right?" — or "Stop tickling me!" Nevertheless, we are all quite proud of this, our last attempt in Sharon High School to gain fame and recognition.

And so we have arrived at the present time — the finale to twelve years of joy and sadness, fun and work, but twelve years that will not soon be forgotten.

Who's Who?

STARRING:

- Who's halfway uptown before Miss Chase dismisses class?
- Who has yet to finish a pair of yellow socks?
- Who and who were fraternizing in the art room?
- Who's the idol of the sophomore girls?
- Who's the idol of the junior girls?
- What was the argument between the senior fellows and girls during mech. drawing class?
- Who spends the majority of the school day sleeping?

Last Will and Testament

Know all men by all these presents that on this first day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and forty-seven, we, hereafter to be known, with veneration, as the Senior Class of Sharon, County of Norfolk, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, do herewith sign and deliver up for probate this, our last will and testament, revoking any and all other wills, testaments, and codicils hitherto made by us.

Being of sound bodies and questionable minds, we do petition that the court name as executor to act without bond, Miss Dorris Newton, of the faculty of the aforesaid high school.

KNOW, THEN, ALL MEN THAT ———

Dewey Beach leaves his mech. drawing desk, T-square, and compass to any junior boy interested in curves.

David Berenson leaves his badly battered auto to Ted Iddings, who, we hope, won't overstay any parking limits.

Dick Biggs leaves his seventh and eighth grade girl-friends to the seventh and eighth grade boys. It's about time.

Donald Borr leaves after a short stay of one year with us.

Paul Bulman leaves his courteous conduct to next year's senior English class with hopes that they won't need it as much as we did.

Janet Chamberlain leaves the school cafeteria in the lurch. Maybe Sally Crook could help her out. She does pretty well along the kitchen line.

Sally Chamberlain leaves her job in the drugstore of a neighboring town to Keith Martin. Is there special service for booths?

Danny Charnas leaves his title of "Class Wolf" to Ted Giberson. Keep your eye on them, Ted.

Charlie Cole leaves his cheerful "Good Morning" to Betty Ann Shyne. Will this help you to be on time, Betty?

Doris Cole leaves her sewing ability to Doris Scott as a good excuse to be in the home ec. room.

Marie Cox leaves her job as server in the cafeteria to Joan Chamberlain, who seems to know already that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach.

Shirley Fader leaves her seat on the school bus to Joan Cochrane.

Rog Frazer bequeaths to Claire Hurley the well-known slogan, "Silence is golden, but I'd rather talk."

Elaine Gregory leaves two bottles of peroxide to Frannie Field, just for chuckles.

Jean Gross leaves with her voice — and next year's Glee Club omits all songs with a high C.

Lew Hankins leaves his chickens to Richard Stockwell. That's a yoke, son.

Jeanne Hurley and Dot Lowden leave their golden silence to Dot Parry, in hopes that she will use a little of it, anyway.

John Kitchen leaves S.H.S. Sally ho, old boy!

Jack Leary leaves — hand in hand with Patty.

Bill Levenson leaves his beard to the junior boys. This will tickle the girls.

Bill Littlefield leaves his famous book "How to Fall Asleep in Class in Ten Easy Seconds" to Helen Ritter who, we think, could use some shut-eye.

Carolyn Macdonald leaves S.H.S. for a happy future.

Honey McGrath leaves his superb talent for loafing luxuriously to Fritz Schnurr, who, it is rumored, has already mastered the art.

Lida McMahon relinquishes to Ona Schensnol her secret of making witticisms. Make good use of it, Ona.

Denny Morgan leaves his smiles to Dana Bartlett. Denny's philosophy has been "A smile for every fellow, two for every girl."

Katy Murnane leaves her red hair to Mary Frances Champion so that she may competently carry the torch for ———.

Bob Parker leaves his particularly peachy, piney, parking-place to the whole junior class so that the class of '47 can have the Gulch all to themselves.

Fred Poblenz leaves his corner seat in 105 to Pete Clapp. Now you can really get out in a hurry, Pete!

Buddy Reddick leaves his razor to Henry Plummer. Buddy can't find any use for it. Think you can, Plummy?

Louie Reddick leaves his weird ties to Art Stevenson along with a turtleneck sweater to keep them hidden.

Eddie Roach leaves his love of horseback riding to the sophomore girls. Hold tight, girls.

Norman (Strike-Out King) Sandhaus leaves his superior pitching arm to Johnny Gomez. N. C., Goldy!

Emily Schensnol leaves to take the most direct route to a certain Army camp. One would think she wanted to be a chaplin.

Connie Sloggett leaves her underclassmen to the freshman and sophomore girls. Now maybe they'll have a chance.

Pat Smith wills her ability to remain calm under any situation to all the junior girls, who often have opportunities to use it.

Elsie Storkfelt and Josie Vacca leave their skill as typists and stenographers to Mickey Poirier. Hope you do as well, Mickey.

Wally Werner leaves his title of "Worst Driver" to Willy Goodwin. Drive carefully, Willy. Champions aren't born every day.

Charlie Whitcomb leaves his frequent jaunts to the Boiler Room, New Hampshire, etc., to any junior who thinks he can keep up the pace. We're still trying to think of one.

Barb White surrenders her technique with the local fellas to Annie Reynolds. Annie, get your gun!!

Earl Whitney leaves; the basketball team grieves; the teachers lose one of their best pupils; and eighth grade girls are forced to find a new idol.

Donald Marshall, after having just arrived, graduates with the satisfaction of knowing he is a member of the best class ever to pass through the portals of S.H.S.

The Senior Girls leave their sorority to the junior girls in hopes that they will carry it on next year.

To Mr. McCarron we leave a copy of the famous best-seller "Physics — Can Girls Learn It Too?" or "Forever Ampere."

To Miss Chase we leave a photograph of ourselves to remember the happy times she had with us. You can put the gun away now.

When we leave, Mrs. Moore will miss our quiet, well-mannered ways. It sounds good, anyhow.

To Mr. Haskins we leave a five-year course at Berlitz School of Modern Language. Lubow and protze from us to you.

To Miss Newton we leave a censor's stamp to replace the one we wore out this year.

To Mr. Konsavage we leave a scrapbook into which he can put all the newspaper clippings about Sharon's record in the tournaments.

We leave Mrs. Keyes to Mr. Keyes —— lucky man!

To Mr. Koskella we leave fur-lined intramural basketball shirts — just to please the moths.

We leave to Miss Prescott a season ticket to next year's basketball games.

To Miss French we leave one year completely free of absence excuses, tardy slips, and corridor passes.

To Mr. Clark we leave a round-trip ticket to Florida for a quick recovery after the crashing profundo of the class of '47's graduation week.

The Prophecy

The year is 1967. After twenty years of concentrated scientific advancement, the class of '47 has so greatly improved the so-called modern world of '47 that this new era is almost a Utopia. In order to create an incentive for other classes to perfect this Utopia to the utmost, a world-wide advertising company has sponsored a tour for the class of '67 to see the achievements of the class of '47. The transportation for this tour is a super-zeppelin equipped with super-electronic eupes which enable the passengers to get a telescopic view of the geniuses at work. Now, on June 5, 1967, the twentieth anniversary of our graduation, the zeppelin departs amid the flare of flash bulbs, blowing of horns, and the blaring of bands, from the roof of good ol' Sharon High School. As the huge ship gracefully glides through the air, the first view the enchanted students witness is: Boston: ——— The Charnas' Charming Shoe Shop, owned and operated by Daniel Elliot Charnas, is now covering a large area of downtown Boston. His field worker, Denny "Sure-Sale" Morgan, has boosted shoe sales 100% by his added attraction of kissing all babes — over 18. Danny is now mumbling to himself, "There'll come a day."

Gliding northward, the passengers catch a glimpse of Bones Whitcomb, an internationally known skier and title holder, at his lavish ski resort, The Green Lantern Lodge, in the mountains of North Conway, New Hampshire. Among the famous socialites who visit the resort annually are Barb White, whose French stage name is Madame Dubuque, and "Bing" Beach, current idol of the bobby-sox brigade.

The huge craft noses southwest across the Great Lakes to Detroit, where Buddy Reddick and Jack Leary have established the Reddick-Leary automobile plant. The new 1967 model went on sale in March. It is equipped with plastic sky-view top, rubberized fenders and is controlled by radar. This stupendous, magnificent, and incomparable car will no doubt be a great asset to Sharon High drivers.

In Grand Rapids they spot the ultra-modern Bountiful Beauty Bin owned and operated by Emily Schensnol and Sally Chamberlain. All these years they have been working on their new formulas; and now, with the success of their endeavor, the world is truly a Utopia, for each and every woman is beautiful!

They find, in Duluth, Tubby Whitney, renowned researcher and veterinarian, who has developed an intra-x-ray, which, when passed through the body of any animal, will cure all known diseases and a few yet to be found. It saves him the dilemma of diagnosis!

Looking down on Great Falls, they see the laboratory of Charles Cole, the true genius and pride and joy of the class of '47, who has received world recognition and lasting fame for discovering a way to counteract the atomic bomb.

Alaska bound—Could it be that one of the talented students of '47 is there? As they approach the teeming seaport of Nome, there looms in the distance a modernistic sky-scraper factory bearing the name of—Roach's Fisheries!

Seattle—As it is rather hard to distinguish, even with the super-eupes, just what Bill Littlefield is doing, the class of '47 will repeat word for word what he told them. "I," said Bill, "am developing a plane that will travel faster than light in order that I may go back through the ages. I've just got to know—"What tune did Nero fiddle?"

San Francisco—Carolyn MacDonald ? has just received the Nobel prize for her novel, "The Trials and Tribulations of a Harried Housewife." Who's your printer, Mac?

Leaving San Francisco their lighter-than-air ship now casts its shadow over industrial San Diego, where, to the astonishment of all aboard, there looms the industries of the Triple B Automobile Association, composed of Berenson, Borr and Bulman. Berenson buys the cars, Borr fixes them, and Bulman sells them.

In Reno, they find Connie Sloggett, the famous divorcee who is now receiving $1,000 a week alimony from her eight ex——s. It seems that Connie will be leaving Reno in a few weeks in quest of the ninth!

Moving southward, the group now looks down upon Doris Cole, a busy housewife, who sits in a soft chair pushing buttons to prepare dinner. Doris says she's anxiously awaiting the gadget that pushes the buttons for her.

Lew Hankins, who has just finished one engineering project, is now working on another by means of which drivers can avoid the twenty-five-cent state toll roads by using his detour which costs only a dime.

In Denver, the class looks upon Dick Biggs, president of the Boy Scout Movement. He has so greatly improved the standing of this organization that the President of the United States is seriously considering the dissolution of the Army.

The celebrated script-writer of stage and television, Lida McMahon, has just completed her "Dictionary of Witticisms." Rog Frazer, editor and columnist of the "Kansas City Star," has given Miss McMahon's book an excellent review. It seems Rog has long admired Lida's wit and humor. She aptly describes it as a bully book.

St. Louis—The Utopolitan Opera House is now featuring Miss Jean Gross and her accompanist Katie Murnane. Miss Gross and Miss Murnane are offering to the public their beautiful rendition of "The Skies are Blue, Too."

In Chicago they see Dr. Wally Werner, noted surgeon and director of the fabulous Werner Hospital, working in the extensive and up-to-date laboratory on his famous "antijection ray" which will revolutionize the field of medicine. His personal secretary and nurse, Elaine Gregory, is striving, in her spare time, to perfect the newly discovered fibrinogentic fluid.

They find Elsie Storkfelt and Jeanne Hurley, secretaries to General Bill Levenson, who is stationed in Washington, D. C. General Levenson is working diligently helping the government spend its surplus funds.

Bob Parker is seen busily moving about the White House in his new duties as private secretary to the President. At present he is taking time out for a snack at the syndicated White House Lunch, owned and operated by Honey McGrath who gained his widespread knowledge of restaurants at Raider's Village.

The famous Poblenz Publishing Company of Baltimore has just accepted the latest book of Patty Smith, the leading authoress of today. "Into the Blue" is the story of a brilliant adventure to Mars in the newly-designed helijet plane. The Sharon Times said: "Miss Smith has astonishingly sure insight of the not-too-distant future." The Utopian Herald said: "Its excellencies mark Miss Smith as a distinguished possibility for the future literary laurels of Red Book."

In New York they find the office of the famous dress designer, Shirley Fader, working on its tenth million. With the coming of summer Miss Fader, with her personal secretary, Dot Lowdon, has gone to the Alps to get ideas for Saks' fall creations. Miss Fader has been awarded the Pattern Award of '67 for her daring and artistic creations.

Also in the city of Art, New York, they chance to see Mud Sandhaus, who is now famous for his caricatures of his now distinguished classmates.

John Kitchen and Don Marshall are leaving New York Harbor on their world's largest transatlantic steamship to embark on a European tour to celebrate their fifteenth anniversary as the best steamship line in the business. It is rumored that Louie Reddick is a stowaway on this anniversary cruise, as he is quite a traveler and has a yearning for the open seas.

As the zeppelin lands on the roof of the Awkumon Inn, owned and operated by Janet Chamberlain and Marie Cox, the passengers are welcomed by Josie Vacca, publicity manager and secretary. The featured vocalist of the evening is Nikki Erkelens, who has recently returned from her South American tour.

The class of '47 sincerely wishes that each of you has benefited by this tour and hope that you feel that the tour has been a success.

With Apologies to Edgar Allen Poe

Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered, weak and weary,
Over many a quaint and curious sentence in my senior theme —
While I nodded, almost napping, suddenly there came a tapping
As of someone gently rapping, rapping at my chamber door.
"'Tis some visitor," I muttered, "tapping at my chamber door,
Only this and nothing more."

Ah, distinctly I remember 'twas in April — not December,
And each separate shadow wrought its ghost upon the floor.
Fearfully I viewed the morrow; — vainly I had sought to borrow
Someone's last year's subject — nothing more.
Someone's last year's theme for mine
Nameless here for evermore.

With Apologies to Rudyard Kipling

When our senior themes are written, recopied and laid aside,
When the basketball season is finished, and Miss Newton is satisfied,
We shall rest, and faith we shall need it — lie down for a minute or two,
Till Commencement and Class Day rehearsals shall put us to work anew!

Under the capable direction of their class adviser, Miss Elizabeth Johnston, the junior class worked diligently on the plans and decorations to make their dance the success it was. The Mardi Gras theme was carried out in artistically arranged top hats, canes, gloves and pink elephants. All who attended complimented the class on a most successful dance.

National Honor Society

Membership in the National Honor Society is the highest honor a junior or senior can attain. This membership is so limited that only outstanding members of the senior and junior classes can be admitted, not more than fifteen per cent and five per cent respectively. To be eligible, a student must be in the upper third of the class scholastically. From this group are chosen those who excel in school leadership, service, and character. Added to last year's junior members, Cornelia Erkelens and John Leary, are Earl Whitney, Lewis Hankins, Charles Cole, and William Levenson. Members from the present junior class are Dorothy Parry and Charlotte Booth. The new members were admitted into the Sharon chapter on February 28 at a very impressive ceremony held in the auditorium. The students who have attained this high standard are to be commended for the excellence of their records while in high school.

Student Government

After a lapse of four years, the Student Government has been reorganized under the supervision of Jack Leary, president, and Mr. John Chaffee, faculty adviser.

One of the many projects concerning student, social, athletic, and academic functions was a contest for the selection of a new school emblem to be used as the official insignia in sports and other activities. Since the photographs for the yearbook were taken, the membership of this organization has been increased to a total of twenty-five: six seniors, five juniors, four sophomores, three freshmen, two eighth-graders and two seventh-graders, with three appointed by Mr. Clark from a list of six chosen by the group.

The members of the Student Government deserve credit for the excellent work they have accomplished. They, in turn, wish to express their thanks to the faculty and student body for the support they have received.

Boys' Senior League Intramural Basketball

Under the direction of Mr. Koskella, the boys' senior league, composed of the following teams: Arabs, Cardinals, Luckies, Radads, and Victors, had a very satisfactory season. Competition was keen and an enthusiastic crowd attended both the afternoon games and those played before the varsity games in the evening. The season closed with the second annual Sports Night, March 26, at which the awards were presented by Mr. Chaffee, Superintendent. Trophies, donated by the Intramural Sports Association, were awarded to Earl Whitney, elected the outstanding boy on the varsity team, Francis Coffey, the outstanding boy on the senior league, and Robert Feist on the junior league. Gold basketballs were presented to the ten members of the Cardinals, the winning senior league team for the season, and silver ones to the Bluejays, the junior league team which won in the play-off which was a part of the Sports Night program.

The Association hopes to be able to buy, with the proceeds from Sports Night, new equipment for both the boys' and the girls' intramural groups next year.

Girls' Senior League Intramural Basketball

The girls' senior league intramural teams, the Ualz, Hot Shots, Picaros, and Ten Pins, have had a fine season with competition keen and interest high. Mrs. Anita Keyes, the girls' athletic supervisor, has given many afternoons to the direction of the games. At the Sports Night, held March 26, Mr. Chaffee presented trophies to Frances Field, the outstanding member of the senior league, and to Beverly Stewart of the junior league. Gold basketballs were given to the ten members of the Ualz, the senior league team which was undefeated throughout the season, and silver ones to the Gazelles of the junior league, who won in the play-off which was a part of the Sports Night program.

Another feature of Sports Night was the hilarious game played by the varsity team in dresses and a group from the girls' senior league in dungarees.

These boys' and girls' intramural basketball leagues are considered a valuable asset to the school for they establish habits of good sportsmanship and fair play.

The Cheerleaders

Under the able supervision of Mrs. Keyes, the cheerleaders, this year, have won a place in the hearts of all the students for the outstanding job they have done. Clad in colorful maroon and gold uniforms, they boosted the morale of both spectators and team, with their snappy cheers and ready smiles. They have added to our basketball season a very real expression of school spirit.

Highlighting the season was the memorable honor of cheering in Boston Garden for a very wonderful team.

DEC

Varsity Basketball

The basketball team, under the direction of Mr. William Konsavage and captained by Earl Whitney, enjoyed only a fair season, having chalked up only seven victories out of thirteen games when it entered the Brockton Y.M.C.A. Tournament. Then, with a bang, the boys came to life, whipping Provincetown, the tournament favorites, and going to the finals, only to lose in a three-minute overtime to Orleans. Recognizing a stellar performance during the tournament, especially in defeating the highly-rated Provincetown team, the Eastern Massachusetts Tournament Committee selected Sharon to participate in the Tech Tourney at the Boston Garden. The boys won the first game; but in the semi-finals, the pressure was too great and they gave way to Wayland. The team made a remarkable showing and may well be proud of this, their first, invitation to the Tech Tournament.
